The Fund returned +0.52% in August vs +0.67% for the TSX Total Return.

The main driver of returns in August came from our Traditional Arbitrage strategy as well as a Subscription Receipt transaction that closed during the month.

Back in March, Intel (INTC.NASDAQ) announced an all-cash deal of $15.3 billion USD to acquire Mobileye (MBLY.NYSE) an Israel-based assisted-driving systems supplier. The company develops vision-based driver-assistance tools to provide warnings before collisions. This transaction is in line with Intel's new directive of moving from a chip company to a data company and the combination is expected to position Intel as a leading technology provider for autonomous vehicles.

On the Subscription Receipt portion of the portfolio, Laurentian Bank of Canada (LB.TSX) finalized its purchase of NCF Holdings LLC (Northpoint Commercial Finance) with the proceeds from the $200 million CAD bought deal of receipts announced back in May. NCF is a leading US and Canadian inventory finance lender with a portfolio of $1.2 billion CAD.
